

Maidenhead Reapers Wargames Society

Code of Conduct

Scope

This document sets out the expected standards of behaviour of members of the society when attending Club nights, Club Events or in any way representing the society. Failing to abide by the code of conduct may result in a complaint and disciplinary investigation by the Committee of the society as set out in the constitution. In serious cases expulsion and exclusion will likely follow.

Compliance with the Law

Members of the Society will not undertake any action that will jeopardise the Societies compliance with UK criminal or civil law. It should be noted this also includes copyright infringement.

Bringing the Club into Disrepute

Members of the society will not undertake any action that could cause reputational damage to the society or otherwise bring it into disrepute. Special care should be taken whilst at external events representing the society or when the society has visitors, or when members of the media are present.

Equality

Members of the society will not take any action or inaction or make any statement that could cause upset, distress or feelings of exclusion based on gender, race, or sexual orientation.

Providing an Enjoyable Experience for All

The society is dedicated to playing games that are in some nature competitive, however to ensure everyone has an enjoyable experience members are required to undertake games in a sporting manner. That is to follow the aspiration that the games shall be enjoyed for their own sake with proper consideration to fairness, respect and a sense of fellowship with our opponents. This means being gracious in victory or defeat and taking consideration of our opponent's ability during play. It is perfectly acceptable to curse our bad luck and the gods of the dice, but not our opponents, their tactics, or strategy.

Cheating or deliberately making your opponent feel unwelcome to gain a psychological advantage are expressly forbidden and will be dealt with extremely seriously.

Use of Blandford House

The Blandford House common room is in a residential complex and it is extremely important we respect the residents. They should always be addressed in a courteous manner and noise should be kept to an acceptable level. The committee will take action over people being excessively noisy as this will jeopardise our use of the room. Extra care to be quiet should be taken when arriving and leaving.
